The First Sign

Of falling health, whether in the form of Night Sweats and Nervousness, or in a sense of General Weariness and Loss of Appetite, should suggest the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This preparation is most effective for giving tone and strength to the enfeebled system, promoting the digestion and assimilation of food, restoring the nervous forces to their normal condition, and for purifying, enriching, and vitalizing the blood.

Failing Health.

Ten years ago my health began to fail. I was troubled with a distressing Cough, Night Sweats, Weakness, and Nervousness. I tried various remedies prescribed by different physicians, but became so weak that I could not go up stairs without stopping to rest. My friends recommended me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I did, and I am now as healthy and strong as ever. - Mrs. E. L. Williams, Alexandria, Minn.

Dyspepsia Cured.

It would be impossible for me to describe what I suffered from Indigestion and Headache up to the time I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The cure of various physicians and tried a great many kinds of medicines, but never obtained more than temporary relief. After taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for a short time, my headache disappeared, and my stomach performed its duties more perfectly. Today my health is completely restored. - Mary Hanley, Springfield, Mass.

AN OLD ART REVIVED.

THE SHADOW SHOW OF M. TREWEY IN PARIS.

A New Phase of an Old Nursery Entertainment—Three Hundred Silhouettes. A Wall, a Lamp and a Nimble Pair of Hands.

(Special Correspondence.)

New York, Oct. 10.—Who does not remember that one of the entertainments of childhood was making silhouettes? A lamp, a white wall and an ingenious pair of hands constitute the paraphernalia of the entertainment. Cats, dogs, rabbits, scolding old women and angry old men come forth, are visible for a little time, and then give place to other figures equally amusing. A certain limited stock company of shadows is known to every one, but it remained for M. Trewey, an ingenious gentleman in Paris, who looks astonishingly like an Irishman, and is one, perhaps, to make a popular art of the manufacture of silhouettes. He has invented more than three hundred new silhouettes of men and animals, to which he gives the movements, attitudes, and an astonishing expression of life and materiality. At the saloon of the Champs Elysees he has been giving entertainments, which have been attended by large and delighted audiences.

M. Trewey was heretofore famous as an equilibrist and prestidigitator. The idea of taking up the old nursery wall shadow and making a show of them which would be alike amusing to the young and the old, is purely his own, and it demonstrates that in staidity there is always a success. It is a platform upon which all can meet and understand everything alike.

Here is the cat. She used to show only her head. Now, under the influence of M. Trewey's genius, she appears entire, even to the tail, which, though somewhat abbreviated, is still a respectable although somewhat scuffed appendage. The accessories for these pictures are very simple. A little scrap of paper cut in the shape represented forms the torso of the judge and the mirror of the priest, whose pulpit is made by a cube of wood suspended to the wall. The goose is represented dressing its feathers with its bill; the elephant when contracting his trunk. The jockey is completed by means of a bit of paper for his cap and a spring for his bridle. The female tight-rope walker is one of the most ingenious of all the figures. She is in the act of sauntering the public, and rubbing the chalk on her feet before stepping forth on her short but perilous pilgrimage on the rope.

There was a time when silhouettes were the popular portraits. Most of us have some idea how our grandfathers looked as a shadow, because we have a diminutive silhouette of him safely preserved in an old fashioned black frame. Silhouettes were known to the ancients, and reached a high degree of perfection with them, as is proven by the monochromes on the Etruscan vases. But the name silhouette comes from about the middle of the last century. Etienne Silhouette was a French minister of finance in 1789. His treasury had been exhausted by costly wars and foolish prodigalities. He set to work to replenish it by inaugurating the strictest economy. He was prudent to penuriousness, which brought down upon him both wrath and ridicule. Anything that was plain and cheap was styled "a la Silhouette."

Shadow profiles were then much in vogue, and, being not only the most elegant, but the cheapest order of likenesses known, got the name of silhouettes, and have kept it ever since. In making profiles of a reduced size the photograph was used. Some persons have a talent for making a perfect miniature profile by merely looking at the features and then cutting them out with a pair of scissors. Almost every one will be astonished at his own shadow.

Shadows on the wall have always a poetic interest. In stories they are good stock, and always have been and always will be used effectively for thrill making incidents. And now, how low the child's eyes will grow when you tell them a story with a shadow in it. Nothing but a bear climbing rapidly up a tree after a boy will make them grow any uglier. And then don't you remember that, after an evening of wall shadow entertainment, you could not go to sleep for an hour after you went to bed, seeing them all over again in your mind's eye?

Would it not be a capital idea for any one to see how many different shadow figures he can invent? There is a field for the entertainment of young and old comparatively little used. Now that home entertainments are so popular, why not try the shadow show? The best of it is that the performer and all the rest of the given people will be as deeply interested in the figures as the children. If M. Trewey can invent more than 300 pictures, why cannot Miss Corlie or Miss August do the same? WALTER WHEATLY.

The Secret of Longevity.

A little way beyond the ancient church at Holderness is a brick residence, whose front is half hidden by one of those monster elms that are the pride of our northern states, and beneath its shade there sits an old man who is passing his 95th year, sitting comfortably in an armchair. My wife told me that he had recently died, aged 105, and, curious to know if there was any special reason for such longevity, I made inquiries. "No," said my informant, "only they were always out of doors and lived a quiet life."

Yet in that single sentence lay a greater philosophy than he dreamed of, a sounder precept than he knew. To keep out of doors and to live a quiet life, followed by a quiet death, would close a majority of our hospital, which, I regret to say, have a greater number of patients with such succeeding years.

Not a few of the citizens of Decatur have recently become greatly excited over the astounding facts, that several of their friends who had been pronounced by their physicians as incurable and beyond all hope—suffering with that dread and monster Consumption—have been completely cured by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, the only remedy that does positively cure all throat and lung diseases. Coughs, Colds, Asthma and Bronchitis. Trial bottles free at J. A. Swearingen's drug store. Large bottles $1.

The Coal Miners' Trouble.
Yesterday was pay day at Beard's coal shaft, and the men were paid for that part of the month which they worked before the strike was declared. The superintendent notified them to remove their tools from the pit, and the shaft will be looked up. To order the men to remove their tools is equivalent, according to Federation rules, to discharging the men. The miners consider themselves employees as long as their tools remain in the shaft, no matter how long they remain on a strike. The men at the Riverport will be paid of Saturday, and will, in all probability, be requested to remove their tools. A prominent operator said to a Journal reporter, yesterday, that he did not believe the strike would be settled much before December from the appearance of things at present. The miners at Bloomington are not yet striking, but are waiting for wages, but for principle. Two of the waiting delegates at one of the Bloomington mines were discharged, and until they are taken back the miners will not return to their work. —Springfield Journal.

W. F. Corbin who killed Charles T. Harris Refused Bail.

He Goes Back to the Sullivan Jail for Trial.

Between five and six o'clock on the evening of September 23, in the town of Sullivan, W. F. Corbin, furniture dealer, aged 60 years, shot and killed Charles T. Harris, a druggist, aged 30 years. They had a quarrel in the street, over an old grudge it is supposed. Corbin on order of the coroner's jury has since been in jail.

By order of the court Corbin was brought before Judge Smith in chambers to-day on a writ of habeas corpus, to hear the evidence and determine whether or not the defendant should be admitted to bail. Sheriff Landon brought the prisoner over, accompanied by his counsel, John R. Eden, J. B. Tarrus and J. H. Baker. The wife of Harris, with her three small children, one a babe, was in court; also William Harris, father of the murdered man, State's Attorney S. M. Snyder, of Monticue county, Attorney J. E. Jennings, and about forty other Sullivan people, all interested as witnesses or spectators.

THE HEARING.
It began without any preliminaries, except brief statements for the People by Mr. Snyder and for the defense by Mr. Eden.

FOR THE PEOPLE.
A. L. Keller, physician and surgeon at Sullivan, knew Charles T. Harris in his life time; I made an examination of the body of Harris one hour and a half after he was killed. Found a bullet wound in left side three and a half inches below left nipple, also a bullet wound on each of the neck over right eye. The first wound on the neck penetrated the brain. The forehead and white of the eye were powder burned. The witness was cross-examined briefly by Judge Smith.

Michael Hayden, aged 15: I live at Sullivan, on south side square, across the alley from the store where the shooting occurred. I was standing at the door when the firing commenced. Mr. Corbin was going from his store toward the alley. He was wearing a dark coat and light trousers. He was walking toward Corbin. Harris took his revolver out of his pocket and pointed it at Corbin. Next Mr. Corbin shot, killing Harris. Harris fell, his body falling in the street; did not see Harris fall, as Corbin shot him. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head.

Cross-examined by Mr. Eden: I just happened to be standing in the alley when the shooting occurred; was there about a minute; heard nothing said; saw the two men at the time the shooting occurred; saw Harris shoot at Corbin; saw Corbin shoot at Harris; saw Harris fall; saw Harris shot at all. After Harris fell Corbin did not shoot again.

Mrs. Olive Rogers: Live at Sullivan, and I saw Harris, I was on the west side of the square when the shooting occurred. Harris was going to the Palace store. First saw Harris five feet from the store; he was walking toward the store and was going west; both men were walking toward the store. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head.

David Waresaw: Live at Sullivan. Know Harris. At the time of the shooting was east of the store. Harris was walking toward the store and was going west; both men were walking toward the store. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head.

FOR THE DEFENSE.
Witnessed Hoke: Was on the east side of the square; heard shot and looking up saw Harris with pistol pointed at Corbin, who was then in the act of taking a revolver out of his pocket. Corbin fired several times. Harris fell. Saw Harris step toward Corbin after the first shot. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head. Harris was shot in the back of the head.

Bethany week before last to attend the old settlers' meeting. He settled in Marrowbone in 1828. Uncle Gilbert Waggoner settled the same year. The month would have to determine who settled first. Fifty-nine years is a good long residence. Uncle Wesley told us about many of the trials of the old settlers. One year their corn crop failed so they could not make meal out of it. They heard that they could buy meal at a mill at Warrensburg, forty-five miles distant, and his neighbors sent him with two yoke of oxen for a load. He was gone four days, brought back a load of meal and got three bushels of it for his trouble. They had been living on potatoes for ten days before.—Sullivan News.

Tragedy.
Saturday night Mr. Geo. C. Miln will appear in his great character, Richelieu. There are very few actors who have been more roundly abused than Mr. Miln. But this is natural, first, from the fact that he left the pulpit for the stage, and further, because he gave evidence from the time of his debut of superior talents. Of course, rivals in the profession sought to crush this budding genius before it had won its way to popularity and fame. But despite the sharp criticisms prompted by jealousy, Mr. Miln has steadily grown in favor, and stands to-day among the greatest tragedians of the American stage. He is a tireless student and hence improves constantly. Never satisfied with ordinary acquisitions he pushes his way with obstinate perseverance and lofty ambition toward a pinnacle of success not yet reached by any actor in the profession. Richelieu is peculiarly adapted to the display of his rare powers.

A Card.
It being known that I denounced the Woodworth camp-meeting from the start, I now wish to make a statement. When Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth left home they gave one of the young ladies traveling with them here to Indianapolis and one dollar in money, telling her to get the rest of the way the best she could. Wednesday night the young lady was at the Church of God near Bowling Springs, and in tears asked for aid to reach home. The congregation made up $3.40 for her, but many that formerly had strong faith in Mrs. Woodworth failed to see any christian aid in her treatment of this young lady. I have said the camp-meeting was a money-making scheme from beginning to end, and a fraud; and since Wednesday night at Bowling Springs church quite a number of its members concern in my belief.

The Strawberry Sermon.
About three years ago Thos. Strawberry died in Springfield, Ill. He was quite wealthy and a prominent member of the Methodist church. In his will he bequeathed the income of $1,000 to the minister who would preach a sermon each year on the subject of the "Greatness, Power and Love of the Savior as the Redeemer of the World." The minister is appointed by the conference to preach this sermon, and it is usually delivered just before the annual conference.

The object of the convention at Peoria was to bring about the completion of the plan to deepen the Illinois river by completing the systems of dams and locks, in which the United States and the state of Illinois have been for several years engaged, so that loaded vessels of ordinary capacity can pass freely from Lake Michigan to the Mississippi, and that the average sized Mississippi steamer can reach the foot of the canal. There has already been expended on this work $747,747 by the state of Illinois, and $742,992 by the general government. The expenditure necessary for its completion to the mouth of the Illinois river is estimated at $687,500.

Foreclosure Wanted.
St. Louis, Oct. 14.—In the United States Circuit Court yesterday the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York filed a bill in equity to foreclose the mortgage on the Forest Park & Central railway. The bill of complaint recites that in 1884 the St. Louis, Kansas City & Colorado became owners of the road, and that three years later the Jackson, Peoria & Santa Fe came into control of the road. It alleges that in December, 1887, the road executed a mortgage to the complainant to secure the principal of $500,000, and that the mortgage was a half-yearly installment for six months made the principal debt. The bill alleges default in several particulars and asks the court to foreclose the mortgage and investigate the affairs of the road.

The Forest Park & Central railway was organized as far back as 1873, with a capital stock of $500,000, to build a road from Forsyth Junction to Clayton, three and one-quarter miles. Later on it was extended at both ends to include thirty miles, extending from Union Depot to the Missouri river. The capital stock was increased to $1,000,000 in 1884, and a $500,000 mortgage was put on the three miles to Clayton, and at the last term of the court a decree of foreclosure was ordered and that portion of the road was advertised for sale. But J. C. C. Sherwood, of New York, and the road filed application to appear in defense and the order of sale was withdrawn. The first day of the October term was set to hear why the applications should not be granted. Later the time was extended, and the applications are now pending in the United States Circuit Court. Of the $500,000 bonds originally intended to be issued only $200,000 were issued, and it is to secure this amount that yesterday's bill was filed.
